Overseas Chinese Association Art Troupe Incorporated	Ensemble: The Butterfly Lovers (with Tai Chi or Sword Dance)	Just like the story of Romeo and Juliet in Western countries, the love story of Liang Shanbo and Zhu Yingtai is widely known in China. According to legend, Liang Shanbo and Zhu Yingtai studied together at an academy for three years, forming a deep bond. Zhu Yingtai disguised herself as a man, but Liang Shanbo never realized the truth. Later, when he finally learned of her true identity, he went to Zhu's family to propose, only to discover that she had already been betrothed to another man. Heartbroken, Liang Shanbo fell gravely ill and soon passed away. On her way to the wedding, Zhu Yingtai heard the tragic news and mourned at his grave. In the end, she transformed into a butterfly, joining Liang Shanbo in eternal freedom. The musical piece Butterfly Lovers, composed based on this story, blends elements of traditional Chinese opera with Western symphonic music. With its beautiful melodies and fusion of Eastern and Western musical styles, it has become one of the most representative orchestral works in China and remains one of the most beloved Chinese classical pieces worldwide.
